

Not for the faint farted...

The London Dungeon gives guests adult nappies ahead of its scariest show yet

12th February 2018

This half term The London Dungeon is providing guests with petrifying protection... Dungeon Diapers of course! To help those of a weak disposition get through its scariest show yet.

The one-size fits all solution gives guests the best defence to losing all control of their mind, bodily functions and soul at new Séance show. The Dungeons Diapers will be provided for free to all visitors from the 10th-18th February (while stocks last) as they visit acclaimed Victorian medium, Agnes Guppy.

Guests should be prepared for a bowel dropping, bladder exhausting experience, as strange goings-on begin in the psychic parlour. Will they be able to hold their nerve and leave with their souls and bodily fluids intact, as they encounter the queen of spiritual circles.

Infamous for materialising séance guest's wildest requests to prove her spiritual abilities, during her sessions Guppy is reported to have made hundreds of flowers, fruits and even lobsters appear as per her customer's requests. She was also known to levitate and enter a terrifying trance like state during séances that had guests fleeing in fear.

Guests who are feeling fearless this February can witness Agnes Guppy's abilities for themselves, while also experiencing 1,000 years of London's dark history with ample amounts of jumps and scares thrown in. They will also hear the stories of Jack the Ripper, the Great Fire of London and face the wrath of our torturer.

Book ahead to avoid 'orrible disappointment: www.thedungeons.com/london

ENDS

For further information please contact The London Dungeon press office:

Londondungeon@stripecommunications.com